iPhone 17 Pricing in the USA: Base Prices

Apple typically announces its new iPhone lineup in September, with pre-orders beginning shortly after the keynote event. For the iPhone 17, Apple has kept its pricing relatively consistent with previous models, offering a variety of configurations to suit different needs and budgets. Here are the starting prices for the iPhone 17 series in the United States:

- iPhone 17 (base model): $799
- iPhone 17 Plus: $899
- iPhone 17 Pro: $999
- iPhone 17 Pro Max: $1,099

These prices represent the standard versions of each model with the base storage configuration. Keep in mind that if you choose a higher storage capacity, the price will increase. For example, the 256GB version of the iPhone 17 Pro will cost more than the 128GB version, and so on. Additionally, there are usually special deals and trade-in offers available through Apple and various retailers, which can lower the upfront cost.

How Does Sales Tax Affect the iPhone 17 Price in the USA?

When you purchase an iPhone 17 in the United States, the price you see listed on Apple's website or at an authorized retailer is typically before taxes. Sales tax in the USA is not included in the base price, and this can vary significantly from state to state. Each state has its own sales tax rate, and some cities and counties add additional local taxes. This means that the final price of your iPhone 17 will depend on your location.

For example, in California, which has one of the highest sales tax rates in the country, the sales tax rate can be as high as 10.25%. In contrast, some states, such as Delaware, do not have any sales tax at all. To get a better idea of how much tax will be added to the price of your iPhone 17, let's look at a few examples:

State	Sales Tax Rate	iPhone 17 Price (Base Model) with Tax
California	10.25%	$881.58
New York	8.875%	$870.56

Texas	8.25%	$865.68
Florida	6.0%	$847.94
Delaware	0%	$799.00

As you can see, the total price of the iPhone 17 varies depending on where you live. The higher the sales tax rate in your state, the more you'll pay for your new iPhone. Keep in mind that some states also charge additional fees for electronic devices or mobile phones, which could further increase the cost.

Additional Costs to Consider

While the sales tax is an important factor in determining the final price of your iPhone 17, there are a few other costs you may need to consider when making your purchase:

- Accessories: Apple offers a wide range of accessories for the iPhone 17, including cases, chargers, AirPods, and more. These accessories are sold separately and can add a significant amount to your overall cost.
- AppleCare+: If you're interested in protecting your iPhone 17 with AppleCare+, which offers extended warranty coverage and accident protection, you will need to factor in the cost of this service. The price of AppleCare+ varies depending on the model and coverage plan you choose.
- Carrier Fees: If you plan to purchase the iPhone 17 through your mobile carrier, be aware that they may charge activation fees, processing fees, or other additional charges that can impact the overall cost.
- Trade-in Offers: If you have an older iPhone or another device to trade in, you may be eligible for a discount or credit toward your new purchase. Apple and various retailers often run trade-in programs that can help offset the cost of your new iPhone.

When Will the iPhone 17 Be Available in the USA?

The iPhone 17 is expected to be released in the USA in September, with pre-orders typically beginning shortly after the product announcement. However, availability may vary depending on demand and your location. Apple often experiences high demand during the initial release period, which can lead to delays in shipping or stock shortages in certain regions. If you're planning to get your hands on the iPhone 17 as soon as it becomes available, it's a good idea to pre-order to secure your device before it sells out.
